REPRESENTATIVE MOLLY JENKINS' 2025 REPORT TO HER EMPLOYERS

THE JENKINS JOURNAL
OKLAHOMA STATE REPRESENTATIVE MOLLY JENKINS' SPECIAL REPORT TO HER EMPLOYERS
HOUSE DISTRICT 33 • 750 N. MAIN STREET, PERKINS, OKLAHOMA 73401 • (405) 326-3196 • MollyJenkins@Reagan.com

Dear Employer,

The following publication contains my report to you—my employers.

Last year I asked for your trust. Specifically, I asked you to replace your current employer with someone new—someone who would represent your values in government.

I observed that the previous officeholder had compromised their integrity by accepting hundreds of dollars in gifts and thousands in campaign contributions from lobbyists and their employees.

That money best explains why so many so-called “Republicans” (including mine) so often conflict with the values of their constituents. Those who take this money are putting themselves into a conflict of interest because the interests of those who benefit from big government and the voters (their employers) who want a small government that treats everyone equally, without awarding special benefits to the politically connected.

I came to your doorstep to make my case in person. I showed you the incumbent’s voting record and pledged that, if you trusted me with your vote, I would do two things:

1. Vote in line with our shared values.
2. Never accept gifts or campaign funds from lobbyists—disseminating that my loyalty lies with you, and no one else.

I work for you. Not them.

That is the purpose of this publication and the reason for my visit to you today.

This report contains a brief synopsis of my work on your behalf during the first legislative session.

I hope that after reading this report, you’ll conclude that I’ve fulfilled my obligation to you by representing your values—and actually making a real difference while doing it.

I’ve thrived in this role. Representing your values has been a privilege. You’ve been an easy employer to work for. From Cushing to the state in Guthrie in the west, the values of House District 33 are pure Americans. I hold these values at the core of my being and consider it an honor to carry them into the often dark and difficult environment that is the Oklahoma State Capitol.

For that reason, I believe I’m well-suited to continue serving in this role—but I’m also deeply grateful for your feedback and input.

Never hesitate to call or email with your thoughts. And if you’re able, please join me at the upcoming Perkins town hall this fall.

Sincerely,
Your Employer,

Rep. Molly Jenkins Kicks Off Post-Session Door-to-Door Tour

The House District 33 representative continues her in-person outreach post-election, aiming to share her work and report back directly to voters.

Since Representative Molly Jenkins is taking a constitutional approach to rural voter engagement in House District 33. Rather than relying on paid consultants, conducting polls, then designing paid-candidate targeted campaign mailings and campaign commercials, Jenkins is focusing on keeping it simple with in-person outreach at the place that matters most—the doorstep of the voter.

Throughout the summer and fall, Jenkins is visiting constituents door to door across the district. She is delivering a printed legislative report that outlines her activities during the session. The report includes summaries of bill voting records, and specific details of her work in the Oklahoma House of Representatives.

Jenkins, a former public school teacher, views the report as an opportunity to “show her work.”

NOTICE

Jenkins, Grellner and Shaw to Host 2025 Town Hall

Senators to say they plan to facilitate local residents access to all levels of government.

Since Representative Molly Jenkins will host a town hall meeting—on Thursday, October 9 at 6:30 p.m. at the Vassar Community Center, located at 750 N. Main Street in Perkins.

Jenkins will be joined by Senator Randy Guthrie and Representative Jim Shaw, who also represent Perkins and Logan counties.

The purpose of the event is to provide the latest updates on issues ranging from 2025 values to the expansion of wind energy development in local counties. The meeting will also give attendees the opportunity to ask questions directly to their elected officials over the most political gathering and question self-empowering dialogue that accompanies many legislative sessions.

Jenkins hopes this will be the first in a series of similar town halls throughout the district.

As part of future planning, Jenkins is asking residents to submit the names of individuals from local, state, or federal government—from elected officials to agency heads—whom they would like to hear from at upcoming events. She plans to use her position to help bring these officials into the district for direct conversations with the public.

The town hall is one part of Molly Jenkins is spending her legislative interim where it matters most—right here in House District 33, going door-to-door and reporting back to her employer: you, the voter.

Jenkins earned your vote by pledging to return conservative representation to our conservative district—and as documented in her report, she delivered.

She received a 100% rating from The Oklahoma Conservative Index, since 1979, the gold standard for measuring the conservatism of Oklahoma legislators.

She plans to bring the report directly to you, so you can review her work first hand—but if you'd like to read the report now, just make a visit to JenkinsForHouse.com to get your copy.

THE TOWN HALL MEETING

You are invited to join Representative Molly Jenkins, Representative Jim Shaw, and Senator Randy Grellner on Thursday, October 9 at 6:30 p.m. at the Vassar Community Center, 750 N. Main Street, Perkins.

THE DOOR-TO-DOOR TOUR

From Ripley and Cushing in the east, to Yale and Stillwater in the north, to Guthrie in the west, Molly Jenkins is on a door-to-door all across House District 33—reporting back to her employers on her work from the last session and gathering input for the next. When you see Molly in your neighborhood, be sure to share your ideas and feedback—she’s listening.
